ABSTRACT

Four counties and five adjacent towns are served by the Broadview, Montana (population 100), community education program begun in 1978. A one mill tax levy and a 3-year Mott fund seed grant allowed for tuition courses in 1979-80; in 1981, a $5 per course fee will be charged. The majority of courses are taught in the school and are designed to provide educational, cultural, and recreational activities (not readily available in rural areas) to citizens age 13 and over. In addition, every effort is made to provide workshops useful to area ranchers and stockmen. Two county extension programs are coordinated through the program. High quality teachers and speakers are selected by the director utilizing community resources, state and local agencies, colleges, or industries. Instructors are paid an hourly rate and mileage; however, many instructors volunteer their time. Since Broadview residents and program participants provide input for planning, development, and evaluation of the program, a strong sense of "community" has been developed. Future plans include programs for younger children, courses for college credit, and courses on parenting and stress management. Appended are a list of seven essential elements of community education, a checklist for improving community education programs, and three program samples. (AH)

INTRODUCTION

In June 1980 representatives of four Montana community education programs met in Helena to develop criteria for assessing their own community education development. The program description that follows is an attempt to answer "How well are we meeting our local needs?"

The four participants studied the seven essential elements of community education which are outlined in Title VIII of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (refer to Appendix I). From this, they developed a checklist of ideas for improving community education programs. They used this checklist to measure their own progress. We include the list as Appendix II in the hope that it will be a useful community education planning and self-evaluation tool.

BROADVIEW—The Community

The town of Broadview is located 35 miles from Billings, Montana, a city of 100,000 people, and has a population of approximately 100 people. Dryland wheat farming and cattle ranching provide a solid agricultural economic base. The school, which serves 131 students K-12, is the social as well as the educational focal point for the life of the community. Other active groups are 4-H clubs, agricultural organizations and three local churches.

Despite its small population, Broadview is a vibrant community. Its citizens, young and old, participate with intensity in the academic, athletic, social and agricultural events offered within the community. Civic involvement is not confined to the local community. Many community members contribute significantly and knowledgeably to political, educational and cultural organizations on both county and state levels.

Origin and Maturity of the Program

The Broadview Community Education Program has been in existence for three years. The following gives an indication of the maturity of the program.

	Year	Classes Offered	Classes Held	Workshops Offered	Workshops Held	Registered Participants*
Winter	1978	6	6	2	2	56
Spring	1979	21	6	1	1	141
Fall	1979	6	5	0	0	41
Spring	1980	16	16	9	6	412
Fall	1980	3	3	0	0	46

*Actual attendance figures are slightly lower.

In 1978, classes were held in late winter for eight weeks. In 1979, classes were held in March and April for eight weeks, and several fall classes were also scheduled. Classes and workshops in 1980 were held in March and April, and similarly, several fall classes and workshops will be scheduled during September and October.

Funding Arrangements

A one mill tax levy appropriated by the school board has generated approximately $2,800 each year for partial funding of the program. In 1978 additional funding came from registration fees. A Mott fund seed grant has provided the additional funding for the years 1979, 1980 and 1981. This source of funds is a diminishing grant: $3,000 (1979), $2,000 (1980) and $1,000 (1981). These monies have enabled the town to offer a tuition-free program during 1979 and 1980. In 1981 participants will be charged $5 per class.

Program Goals

The goals stated below are expressive of the desires of the local population for its community school program. The program goals for the 1977-78 school year were:

1. We will identify the needs and desires of individuals in our community, which can be satisfied by our program.
2. We will identify the human and physical resources in our community, in order to select those which can help us meet our first goal.
3. We will attempt to share this process with several of the communities which border our own, in the hope that we may better communicate with them, and perhaps be able to share our resources.
4. We will attempt to utilize our public school facilities as much as possible, to give our taxpayers a better return on the monies they have invested in them.
5. We will attempt, whenever possible, to hire people from our community to act as instructors, but if a need is identified which cannot be met in this way, we will consider reaching outside of our own resources, if the need is sufficient to warrant this.
6. We will encourage as many people in our community as possible to become involved in our program, and if possible, we will share our program with people from other communities.
7. We will offer the services of our community as inexpensively as we can, so that no one who wants to participate will be unable to due to financial reasons.
8. We will attempt to evaluate the services we have performed, and will stridently seek to improve them.
9. We will attempt to involve as many people in our community as possible in every aspect of our program, including the planning of courses and evaluation of services.

Administration and Staffing

The school board has for three consecutive years levied a one mill tax in support of community education. The community education director reports to the school board at least twice a year.

Instructors are paid to open and close school buildings.

In 1980-81, the superintendent and clerk will assist the director in record-keeping, payment of fees and class registration. They will be paid $200.

Duties of the Community Education Director

1. Promote philosophy and concept of community education within the town of Broadview.
2. Maintain continual awareness and sensitivity to the needs and desires of the community which can be met through the community education program.
3. Report to and solicit input from:
   a. Advisory council
   b. School board
   c. Superintendent
   d. Students and faculty of local school
   e. Community members.
4. Schedule appropriate classes, workshops, events, and recreational opportunities.

5. Hire instructors. Coordinate agency and/or industrial leaders and facilitators.
6. Maintain and organize budgets, salaries, registration and class schedules.
7. Solicit funds for printing and advertising.
8. Attend workshops and conferences.
9. Conduct ongoing assessments and evaluations of program.
10. Publicize program through school newsletter and community education brochures.

Community Needs Assessment

1. There was an initial telephone survey of entire community.
2. Community needs are solicited from:
   a. Advisory council
   b. School board
   c. Superintendent
   d. Students and faculty of local school
   e. Community members.
3. Evaluation forms given to each participant, which include requests for program suggestions.
4. Information from county extension programs.

Community Input in Program Planning, Development and Evaluation

When the community suggests classes, workshops, seminars and sports events, the community education director schedules them during the following sequence of classes. Participants evaluate classes as they near completion. Both the evaluation by participants and registration for the subsequent sequence of classes, events, etc., assist the director and council in decisions concerning program planning and development.

Selecting Services and Programs

In addition to the above processes, the director keeps abreast of programs held in adjacent counties, cities, towns, public schools, and colleges. Programs which might be of interest to the town of Broadview are brought to the attention of the above mentioned committees and community members.

Use of School and Community Facilities

At this point, school facilities for community education are used for approximately eight to 10 weeks in the spring and six weeks in the fall. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday are usually scheduled for community education classes, workshops, or ongoing recreational events.

Community education classes utilize:

1. Classrooms
2. Home economics classroom and kitchen
3. Gymnasium
   a. Exercise class
   b. Tennis class
   c. Dancing class
   d. Sunday volleyball
4. Outdoor track (exercise class)

5. Faculty lounge
   a. Creweling class
   b. Needlepoint class

Non-school facility:

1. The local American Legion Hall is used for upholstery.
2. Local homes are used for oil painting.

Ages and Special Populations Served

Age groups which have been served include young people age 13 (or in seventh grade) through adults.

A real effort has been made to meet the needs of the ranchers and stockmen. The following workshops covered topics of vital interest to Broadview landholders:

- Estate Tax for the Farmer and Rancher
- Artificial Insemination
- Alternative Crops
- Tax Assistance for the Farmer and Rancher
- Cattle and Wheat Futures
- Revamping Your Gleaner-Combine
- Nutrition for Feeder Calves

Interaction with Other Organizations

County extension programs in Stillwater and Yellowstone counties have been coordinated through the Broadview community education program. Local churches, 4-H and the Grain Terminal Association (GTA) do not as yet interact with the program.

Community Resource People

Community resources are recommended to the director by "word of mouth" for their expertise in a given area. For a suggested class or seminar, the director researches state or local agencies, colleges, or industries for the most highly qualified resource person. They are used both as speakers and as teachers. The director provides orientation for the resource people by letter or telephone. They are evaluated by having class participants fill out evaluation forms.

Fee Structure

All instructors receive $8 an hour and 17 cents per mile for mileage. Exceptions are county extension agents, representatives from colleges, law firms, investment companies and industries who volunteer their services or for whom such services are part of their job commitments.

Wheat weaving will be taught this fall by a community member who is volunteering her time and sharing her knowledge. Hopefully, this trend will continue.

Benefits of the Community Education Program

Students greatly enjoy the opportunity to learn skills such as tennis, guitar and disco dance they otherwise would not learn in a rural area. The multiplicity and diversity of class and workshop offerings greatly enrich the leisure lifestyle and skill acquisition of participants.

For the past two years, the courses have been free. In the near future, the cost will be minimal (16-20 hours for $5). Transportation time is negligible. Courses would be far more expensive in the nearest city (Billings), and total traveling time would be at least 1½ hours.

The community education program is certainly cost effective for the participants and provides a real sense of enjoyment of simply being together, having fun together and the mastery of new skills. All evaluation forms attest to the very positive feelings resulting from attendance in the Broadview Community Education Program. Over and over again in the space entitled "Comments," one reads, "It's great for the community."

Participants in this community education program at Broadview come from four counties—Yellowstone, Golden Valley, Musselshell and Stillwater—and five adjacent towns—Rapelje, Molt, Lavina, Ryegate and Acton. These people are also pleased with the opportunity they have to attend classes and workshops. Although they do not pay community taxes, the fee for out-of-district participants will be $5 as it is for Broadview residents.

A broadly inclusive program such as this, located in a rural area, extending its services and educational and recreational offerings freely to adjacent towns and counties, cannot help but instill a tangible sense of "community"—people helping people—sharing, working, learning and playing together.

Positive Changes

The attitudes of individuals toward each other and toward the local school have become markedly more positive. The community education program brings the ownership of the school facility to all the citizens of the town. No longer does the building exist solely to satisfy the educational requirements of young people from the ages of six to 18.

Plans for Expansion

1. Programs for younger children will be developed. More specifically, classes will be incorporated for:
   a. Pre-schoolers (ages three to five)
   b. Elementary age children (ages seven to 12)
2. Courses for college credit are a possibility. This would be accomplished through cooperation with Eastern Montana College.
3. Courses in parenting and stress management, (i.e., personal growth) may be coordinated through the Billings Mental Health Center.

Adjustments Needed

Classes are dropped when registration or demonstrated need indicates that interest is no longer sufficient to warrant offering them.

In certain areas or specific crafts, there is a high degree of interest in acquiring the skill and progressing to an advanced level of proficiency. For instance, beginning cake decorating has been offered three times, along with advanced cake decorating. Interest is still high here. However, the ballroom and disco dance class attracted 55 students when it was offered initially. Approximately 20 participants registered for the second session and attended sporadically. Obviously, the need no longer existed.

Problems and Possible Solutions

Problem Areas	Possible Solutions
Where shall we go for the near future? Growth in numbers is not likely nor feasible. We need to maintain a high-quality stable program which continuously meets community needs.	Continued input and increased activity from advisory council.
Summer activities for children.	Summer staff.

APPENDIX I

The Seven Essential Elements of Community Education

1. Role of the School. A local education agency is directly and substantially involved in administering and operating the program.

2. The Community Served. The community education program serves at least the regular attendance area of the school(s) operating the program.

3. Community Center. A school or other public facility serves as a community center which offers educational, recreational, health, cultural and other community services that:

   a. are broad in nature and scope and are not restricted to particular groups or program areas;
   b. reinforce the regular instructional program of the school administering the program; and
   c. make use of the facilities beyond the regular school day.

4. Community Needs. The community education program develops a systematic procedure for assessing and responding to community needs.

5. Community Resources and Interagency Cooperation. The community education program makes maximum use of existing educational, cultural and social resources within the community, including the services of volunteers. Cooperative arrangements with public and private community-oriented agencies are encouraged as a means of making the most of existing skills and services.

6. Program Clients. Programs and services are designed to meet the needs of people of all ages, especially those who have been traditionally underserved.

7. Community Involvement. The community education program provides for active and continuous involvement of the community in planning and implementing programs and services.

APPENDIX II

IDEAS FOR IMPROVING

COMMUNITY EDUCATION PROGRAMS

This is a checklist that both new and existing community education project participants can use to:

determine what is working well.

identify what is causing difficulties.

decide what can be done about the difficulties.

find practical ways of reaching new goals.

plan how to integrate new services without disrupting current services.

	This exists now, but needs improvement	This exists now and is working effectively	It is time to develop this
The school district's board/administration display commitment to the concept of community education.
The school district board/administration actively commit resources to community education.
The community education program avoids duplicating services effectively offered by other agencies.
The program has a systematic process for determining what services it will support.
The program systematically selects and achieves service goals.
The program promotes community understanding and commitment to community education.
The program is continually modified according to systematically collected data about what has and has not been working well.

	This exists now, but needs improvement	This exists now and is working effectively	It is time to develop this
The program reinforces the K-12 curriculum.
The program offers appropriate services for at least all people within the defined attendance area.
The program makes extended use of existing facilities.
The program is developing into a regular part of the school program rather than be an exclusive "add on" to regular school operations.
The program systematically seeks to understand and respond to community needs and wants.
The program is making the best use of existing educational, cultural and recreational resources.
The program is using and training volunteers effectively.
The program is building networks and cooperation with other private agencies.
The program forecasts new social trends and community changes so that economic or age groups who suddenly need new services will have them.
The program serves all age groups.
The program avoids over-serving any particular group of people.
Parents and community representatives are continuously and significantly involved in all aspects of the program's operations.

A Song for Autumn

A glint of crimson in the woodland arches,
A mellow sheen upon the steep hillside;
Shy asters blooming by the dusty highway,
And goldenrod aglcam in meadows wide.

White feathery milkweed, bursting from her prison,
Blue hills outlined against a bluer sky;
While sturdy brakes within the rocky pasture
Take russet hues, as sunny days go by.

Cool winds sweep forth from mystic forest spaces,
Gay squirrels chatter on the mossy wall—
Though summer pauses, comes the brave, bright autumn,
And every heart responds to her glad call.

REGISTRATION

HOW TO REGISTER

You may register for any community education course either by mail, using the registration form, or in person by calling or visiting:

Ray Lewis, Director
Community Education
Broadview Schools
Broadview, MT. 59015
Telephone: 667-4306

CLASS SIZE LIMITS

Since some classes have limited enrollments, early registration is advised. If a course is limited, only a paid registration will hold a space in the class. Registration by telephone is most efficient.

We reserve the right to cancel any course in which there is not sufficient enrollment. Should a course be cancelled after you have enrolled, you will be given an opportunity to change to another course.

REGISTRATION DEADLINES

There is a pre-registration deadline listed for many of the courses to insure sufficient enrollment. However, persons not able to pre-register may enroll in a class by paying the appropriate fees and attending the first session of the course, providing the course has not been filled.

INFORMATION SURVEY ABOUT COMMUNITY EDUCATION

Who: It's for YOU and your family, your friends and neighbors.

WHAT: Community Education is an opportunity for local families and individuals to share learning experiences and recreation activities in an informal setting using the school as a meeting place.

WHERE: The facilities at Broadview Schools.....making use of our buildings and equipment for extra hours and lots more people.

HOW: Community Education in Broadview and surrounding areas depends on your interests and your needs. Please read the list of possible classes and activities and check off those you would like to take. Remember to consider every member of your family as you explore the variety of experiences that may be available.

Share your knowledge! Volunteer to lead a class or activity. You can plan it to suit yourself and you don't have to be a teacher. Just think over your hobbies, interests, and skills and see if there is something you could "show and tell" to others.

Please return a completed survey (found on the next two pages) to school. The results of this survey will help us better serve you and your needs.

The Broadview Community Education Program is in its fifth year of existence. The program is offered for local citizens of Broadview and to citizens of adjacent communities. The concept of community education stresses people helping people-sharing skills, knowledge and providing increased personal enrichment. Community education maximizes the utilization of school facilities, offers educational, social and recreational opportunities in a variety of areas, and promotes lifelong learning.

In 1979 the town of Broadview received a $3000 "seed" grant from the Mott Foundation, a private foundation dedicated to the development of community schools. This program is now funded by registration fees and a tax levy of one mill which has been approved annually by the trustees of the Broadview School Board.

REGISTRATION

HOW TO REGISTER

You may register for any community education course either by mail, using the registration form, or in person by calling or visiting:

Ray Lewis, Director
Community Education
Broadview Schools
Broadview, MT 59015
Telephone: 657-4306

CLASS SIZE LIMITS

Since some classes have limited enrollments, early registration is advised. If a course is limited, only a paid registration will hold a space in the class. Registration by telephone is most efficient.

We reserve the right to cancel any course in which there is not sufficient enrollment. Should a course be cancelled after you have enrolled, you will be given an opportunity to change to another course.

REGISTRATION DEADLINES

There is a pre-registration deadline listed for many of the courses to insure sufficient enrollment. However, persons not able to pre-register may enroll in a class by paying the appropriate fees and attending the first session of the course, providing the course has not been filled.
